Re: Venting of “DoughPro” solid fuel pizza ovens.

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended that any application for permits using the “DoughPro” solid fuel pizza ovens, also know as “Terraluxe”, with direct venting be rejected. See attached Intertek’s Authorization to mark for complete list of models. These ovens need to be installed under a type 1 hood (grease hood) unless otherwise proven by providing product’s listing documents (same as with any other solid fuel pizza oven brand or model) that allow the use of direct venting.

REASONS

According to attached ETL’s 5/9/2019 email: “This device is intended for use with a vented exhaust hood constructed and installed in accordance with current versions of NFPA 96 or UL 710.”

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

This notice is the result of an investigation by BORA’s staff on allegations made by the appellant during the hearing of Appeal 18-02.

We have tried and failed to obtain listing documents from the manufacturer of this products that would show that the “DoughPro” solid fuel pizza oven is tested and listed for use with direct venting. If we receive different information, we will forward it to you.

These products are used by some restaurants in the county.

Please provide this information to your plans examiners and inspectors.

Respectfully submitted,

Rolando Soto. Bryan Parks

Good afternoon Ms. De Vries,

Thank you for taking up this issue. Please see the attached document. I'm trying to find the listed venting for this particular oven. Specifically was it listed for direct venting or for venting thru a Type 1 (grease) kitchen hood.

Again thank for your assistance,
